READING YOUR BRIEF LITERALLY

Your first bullet is the one most candidates will skim past:

> "This is, primarily, a business development role focusing on international financial institutions."

So the honest question is not whether I know AI. It is whether I can win and hold revenue.

Where I can answer yes: I have generated my own revenue for eight years. 20+ concurrent client accounts won and retained between 2018 and 2021, HK$3M+ cumulative spend under management, and a current consulting book sold at HK$13,800/month off inbound demand I created myself. Pitch, scope, deliver, report, renew — all of it mine, no partner feeding me leads.

Where the answer is no, stated once: I have never sold into an international bank or insurer, never carried a consulting revenue quota, and never closed a seven-figure engagement. My deals are five-figure monthly retainers with SME and mid-market owners, not multi-year programmes signed by a bank COO. That is a genuine order-of-magnitude gap and no amount of framing closes it.

What follows is what I would actually bring to a commercial seat, and you can judge whether the transfer is credible.

THE COMMERCIAL RECORD

Won and held 20+ accounts at once, for three years

Freelance, Nov 2018 – Dec 2021. Retail, lifestyle and F&B. HK$3M+ cumulative ad spend at 3–7x ROAS. No agency brand behind me, no inbound pipeline handed over — every account was sourced, pitched, scoped and renewed by me. Renewal was the only marketing I had, which is a harsh but clarifying business model.

Relevance to cross-selling: every one of those relationships started as one service and had to earn the second. That is the mechanic in your second bullet — "relationship management of existing clients with a clear view to identifying new project opportunities and cross-selling" — run several hundred times at small scale.

Built demand rather than bought it, then converted it

@aieasyjob — my own Cantonese brand on YouTube, Instagram and Facebook, 58 films written, directed and cut solo, eight in the last month. One Facebook Reel reached 76,000 organic views from a 77-follower page with zero paid support; a second, built the same way, reached 11,000, which is what tells you the first was structural rather than luck.

That audience converts: B2B consulting engagements at HK$13,800/month.

Relevance: consulting practices are usually excellent at delivery and poor at demand generation. I have built a demand engine from nothing, in Cantonese, in Hong Kong, and proven it produces buyers rather than followers.

Turned around an account that was about to leave

A fashion and lifestyle retailer with budget trapped in warm retargeting and a stale creative pool. I moved 70% of spend into cold-audience acquisition and tested to isolate which messages were failing rather than blaming audiences. ROAS 0.3x → 3x in 90 days on a majority-acquisition split — the harder version of that result, because it is net-new customers rather than harvesting existing demand.

Relevance: account retention under pressure. The commercial skill is not the media buying, it is holding the client's confidence while you rebuild something that is currently failing.

Sold internally as well as externally

Owned HK$500K+/month at Baby Central and built the GA4 and Meta dashboards senior stakeholders reported off. Getting product, operations and finance to agree what a number meant — before asking any of them to fund the next phase — is internal business development. Your brief asks for someone who can "impart knowledge, both internally and externally"; the internal half is usually the harder sell.

Managed 200+ third parties to a standard

Sourced, briefed and quality-controlled 200+ KOL and influencer partners across HK and SEA in a trust-sensitive category, including rejecting work before a client saw it. Supplier and partner governance at volume.

THE AI CREDENTIAL, BRIEFLY

Since the role sells AI, the seller needs to be credible in it rather than merely fluent about it.

I put generative AI into a commercial production line in 2022 — client-facing work at Baby Central, roughly two years ahead of general adoption. Testing cycles cut 50%, production cost materially reduced, output at 10+ variants per cycle while holding single-variable discipline so results stayed attributable.

And I can state savings honestly — 50% off testing cycles, ~60% off production time — because I measured before and after. Vague productivity claims are precisely why finance functions stop believing AI business cases, and a seller who overstates once loses the account.

Daily working tools: Claude and Claude Code, ChatGPT, Gemini, Midjourney, Notion AI, Zapier / Make-style automation chaining.

WHERE I AM SHORT

Enterprise FI sales. No bank or insurer logo, no quota history, no seven-figure close. Stated plainly because it is the single most load-bearing requirement in your brief.

Consulting-firm operating model. I have never worked inside a large consultancy — no exposure to utilisation targets, engagement economics, partner-level pursuit teams or the internal politics of a global practice.

IT strategy and Agile. I have led neither. Campaign programme management across many concurrent accounts is adjacent, not equivalent.

Financial services domain. Not my sector. I have done the regulatory reading for adjacent applications — Money Lenders Ordinance licensing conditions, the HKMA Mandatory Reference Checking Scheme — so I know how to approach a compliance perimeter, but I would be learning it, not advising on it.

AVAILABILITY & PACKAGE

Current: HK$40,600 per month — self-employed consulting income. Gross, and excluding employer MPF contribution, paid annual leave and medical coverage, so not directly comparable to a permanent package.

Expected: HK$49,000 – 54,000 per month base, excluding bonus. Morgan McKinley's 2026 Hong Kong reference point for a Digital Marketing Manager is HK$55,000, and this range sits under it deliberately — I am not pricing myself at Director level in a global consultancy, because I have not earned that level. Flexible depending on how the role is levelled and the total package — happy to anchor to your budgeted band rather than guess.

Availability: 2 weeks from agreed terms.

Location: Hong Kong, available on-site.
