Creative Strategist — Storytelling & Community

+852 9298 1110 | ansonchanai@outlook.com | digitalanson.com | youtube.com/@aieasyjob | IG @aieasyjob | FB: AI 係咁易

Expected salary: USD $3,500 per month

PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Creative Strategist and content creator who turns complex, technical subjects into stories ordinary audiences act on. Founder of @aieasyjob — a Cantonese AI-education brand across YouTube, Instagram and Facebook built from zero, solo — where the entire craft is translation: taking AI agents, automation and prompt engineering and rebuilding them as narrative that non-technical viewers actually finish.

The clearest evidence is structural, not lucky. A single Facebook Reel reached 76,000 organic views from a 77-follower page — approximately 990x follower count and 210x the channel median, with zero paid support — and a second Reel using the same story architecture reached 11,000 views. On YouTube, 84,000+ views across 57 videos with 7 published in the trailing 30 days. Story structure is the only variable that could have produced that; there was no budget and no distribution to borrow.

Storytelling here is accountable to conversion, not to applause. Content converts directly into paying B2B clients (HK$13,800/month consulting packages), and the same narrative discipline sits on top of 7+ years of commercial creative and performance work — HK$3M+ ad spend at 3–10x ROAS and a 200+ KOL community programme across HK and SEA.

Trilingual: Cantonese (native), English (fluent), Mandarin (fluent). Available for remote, Hong Kong-based.

SIGNATURE CASE STUDIES

1. Story Structure Beating Distribution — 76,000 Views from 77 Followers

Context. @aieasyjob's Facebook page had 77 followers and a channel median around 360 views per Reel. No paid amplification, no existing audience to seed reach, no algorithmic advantage. Anything that travelled had to travel on the strength of the story itself.

Action. Developed and refined a repeatable story architecture through weekly iteration: a first-frame visual pattern-interrupt, a tension-led opening beat that poses a question the viewer needs answered, and a payoff timed against the exact points where retention data showed people leaving. Tested hook framing and opening visuals every week against native retention and thumb-stop analytics — treating narrative as a testable variable rather than a matter of taste.

Result. 76,000 organic views on a single Reel — roughly 210x the channel median and 990x follower count, with zero ad spend. A second Reel built on the same architecture reached 11,000 views, confirming the outcome was reproducible structure rather than a one-off. On a page with no distribution to lend, story construction was the only available lever.

2. Translating Complex Ideas for Non-Technical Audiences — @aieasyjob

Context. AI tooling — agents, automation, prompt engineering — is the single hardest consumer subject to make legible: high jargon density, low tolerance for error, and an audience that abandons instantly when it feels lectured at.

Action. Built the channel's entire editorial craft around translation rather than explanation. Each piece opens on a recognisable human situation, not a tool name; the technical payload is introduced only once the viewer has a reason to want it; and every concept is anchored to a concrete outcome the viewer can picture in their own working life. Developed the "Working Dad" AI series to attach abstract capability to a specific lived context.

Result. 84,000+ YouTube views across 57 videos and a sustained weekly publishing cadence as a solo operator, with content consistently reaching audiences well beyond the subscriber base — the mark of stories that get shared rather than merely watched.

3. Community as a Creative Engine — 200+ KOL Partnerships

Context. Baby Central, Hong Kong's #1 baby e-commerce platform, scaling across HK and SEA in a category where parents trust other parents far more than they trust brands.

Action. Built and scaled a 200+ KOL and influencer community — briefing creators on narrative angle rather than handing them scripts, shaping UGC around genuine parent situations, and treating the creator base as an ongoing relationship rather than a series of transactions. Fed creator and comment insight back into the brand's own creative direction.

Result. A working UGC engine generating qualified leads and measurable brand lift, contributing to consistent 3–7x ROAS on HK$500K+/month spend and HK$300K incremental GMV within 5 months.

4. Narrative That Converts to Revenue — Content-Sourced B2B Clients

Context. An education-led content brand with no sales team, no paid acquisition and no outbound motion. Every enquiry had to originate from trust built in the content itself.

Action. Structured content so that demonstrated competence, not persuasion, did the selling — showing real workflows end to end, including the parts that fail, and building a consistent point of view across platforms so returning viewers accumulated confidence rather than just information.

Result. B2B consulting enquiries and client proposals at HK$13,800/month packages sourced directly from organic content — a complete content-to-qualified-lead pipeline built on narrative trust alone.

| All channels            | Paid amplification                 | None — fully organic |

STORY ARCHITECTURE — HOW THE WORK IS BUILT

Hook. First frame is a visual pattern-interrupt, not a title card. The opening beat poses a question the viewer needs resolved, framed in a situation they recognise before any product or tool is named.

Tension. A specific, concrete stake — usually a real cost of doing it the old way — rather than a generic benefit claim. Tension placement is tested, not assumed.

Payoff. Timed against observed drop-off points in retention data, so the resolution lands where attention is actually still present rather than where the script would naturally put it.

Return. A consistent point of view across platforms, so returning viewers accumulate trust rather than just consuming individual pieces — the mechanism that converts audience into clients.

Iteration. Every element above is treated as a testable variable, scored weekly against hook rate, thumb-stop rate and retention curves, with winners documented into a playbook so patterns compound.
